

New Community Journals and Discussion Journals at the IPCR website

There are now expanded opportunities for people who would like to participate in (or simply read) community journals and discussion journals associated with The IPCR Initiative.

Here is a list of the recently created community journals and discussions journals.

Note: These community journals and discussion journals can be accessed by going to the “Interact and Contribute” section of the IPCR homepage (at [www.ipcri.net)]

1) The IPCR Weekly Questionnaire

A community journal (blog) which will feature one question per week, which can come from “The IPCR Building Caring Communities Questionnaire”—or from suggestions from participants. This Community Journal encourages responses to the weekly questions, discussion about creating questions that will help build caring communities, and other related comments, and resource recommendations.

2) The IPCR Workshops Community Journal

A community journal (blog) which is a place for discussion on how to bring facilitators for IPCR workshops, resources, and people who are interested in IPCR workshops together. This community journal also serves as a “hub” for 8 discussion journals (blogs), one for each of The Eight IPCR Concepts.

3) The IPCR Community Journal #2

A community journal (blog) which is not a “list serve”—and intended to be more informal (posts from this community journal will not be considered for possible use in the “Highlights” section of the IPCR website). This location also has many resource links, which may help with discussion.

Posted by

Stefan Pasti
The IPCR Initiative